Skill Development Program Opens New Center in New Jersey

Mayor of Hightstown Robert F. Patten inaugurates the new Brainobrain center in Highstown, N.J. on July 17. Hightstown center owner Geetanjali Mane and master trainer Rajni Varshaney addressed the audience and spoke about the center and its plans. Brainobrain is a skill development program for kids between the ages of 4-14 years, which focuses on whole brain development (using advanced Abacus) and personality development (using NLP-Neuro Linguistic Programming).

From November 5, 2010 to April 11, 2011, the Rubin Museum of Art will present works by five artists of different generations and ethnicities, working between 1960 and the present, whose work has been influenced by the tenets of Buddhism, including its central principles of emptiness and the fleeting nature of all things.

The exhibition, entitled Grain of Emptiness: Buddhist Inspired Contemporary Art, assembles videos, paintings, photographs, and installations dating from 1961 to 2008 by
